PAUL L. SNYDER

THE BRAVES' "NEW TEAM"

JOHN Y. BROWN

There's a "new team" in town and its goal is to bring the National Basketball Association championship to Buffalo.

Ever since the Braves played their first NBA game back in October 1970, they've known but one owner — Paul L. Snyder. That all changed last August when Snyder and John Y. Brown, former owner of the ABA Kentucky Colonels, completed a deal in which Brown purchased 50 per cent of the team's stock.

It was a move that caught everyone in Western New York by surprise, but one that promises to make the ballclub an even more viable force in the community and the NBA than in the past.

The similarity between the Braves' new co-owners is striking. Both are 42, both were athletes in college, and both are tremendously successful self-made businessmen. In addition, both have a profound interest in professional basketball and are intent on developing the Braves into one of the NBA's finest franchises.

With Snyder directing the business end of the operation and Brown the basketball matters, they are working together to achieve the ultimate goal — the NBA title.

Snyder, a native of Mansfield, Pa., has resided in Buffalo for more than 20 years. A graduate of the State University at Buffalo, he played varsity football for the Bulls and also was a tenacious competitor on the varsity wrestling team.

In 1958, just one year after his college graduation, he founded Freezer Queen Foods Inc., and it wasn't long before the firm became the largest processor of frozen meat products in the United States. Freezer Queen merged with the Nabisco Co. in 1970 and Snyder became the latter's largest shareholder. He is still the president and board chairman for Freezer Queen.

In addition, his interest in family recreation led to his creation of Snyder's Darien Lake in Corfu, N. Y., one of the finest family camping and recreational areas in the country.

Brown, a native Kentuckian, is a University of Kentucky law graduate. While at UK, he not only was a member of the varsity golfing team, but its No. 2 player behind Gay Brewer, who later won the U.S. Masters Tournament.

After graduation, he began working in criminal law with his father, John Y. Brown Sr., who at one time was one of the most prominent criminal lawyers in the country. It wasn't long, however, before John met Col. Sanders. He then proceeded to build Kentucky Fried Chicken into a $780 million business. Brown sold his share in KFC in 1971 and now owns Lums and Ollie's Trolley Inc., two national fast food businesses.

Brown owned the ABA Kentucky Colonels for the last three years, and also served as president of the league's executive committee for the last two years. It was during that time that he was a strong advocate of an NBA-ABA merger.

While Brown had a taste of that "championship feeling" when the Colonels won the ABA crown in 1975, Snyder has yet to see the Braves capture a title.

Now, with Brown and Snyder teaming up for the first time, don't be surprised if NBA honors come to the Queen City very soon.

MICHAEL J. DeROSE

Executive Vice President

Joining the Braves' front office staff this year is Michael J. DeRose, who was appointed executive vice president in early September.

DeRose, president of DeRose Food Brokers, one of the largest food brokerage firms in New York State and the country, is no stranger to the organization, having served on its board of directors since 1970.

As executive vice president, DeRose directs the Braves' sales operation which includes season tickets, the 21-game plan, special ticket programs and group sales.

Upon his appointment, the team's co-owners Paul L. Snyder and John Y. Brown, commented, "With the addition of Mike DeRose, we now feel the Braves have the most dynamic management staff in the NBA."

DeRose, who has been described by Snyder as a "great salesman," is one of the reasons why the team's season ticket sales have far surpassed those of a year ago.

"We intend to pursue every lead in an attempt to increase season ticket sales," DeRose had promised when he accepted the appointment.

As a result of his efforts and those of his staff, as well as the Sports Committee of the Buffalo Area Chamber of Commerce, the Braves have been able to elicit the support of the Niagara Frontier's industrial and business community.

A native of Buffalo, DeRose is a graduate of McKinley High School, and attended the University of Buffalo where he majored in business administration.

Since 1970, he has been the sole owner and president of the brokerage firm that bears his name. The company supplies food to all major food outlets in Western New York, Rochester, and Erie, Pa. In addition, DeRose has a subsidiary in Syracuse, and a brokerage firm in Toronto.

Married to the former Rita Iraci, the couple has three sons, and the DeRoses reside in Williamsville.

BOB MacKINNON

General Manager

Though basketball games obviously are won and lost on the court, behind-the-scenes maneuvers in the front office quarters of the general manager frequently play a major role in the success of NBA ballclubs.

Such is the case of the Buffalo Braves, and in Bob MacKinnon, the team has one of the most knowledgeable and astute GM's in the business.

MacKinnon, highly regarded as a coach after 13½ years on the college level and three in the professional ranks, assumed a new role last season and not only felt quite comfortable in it, but quickly earned the respect of other general managers around the NBA.

MacKinnon is an excellent judge of talent and proved it with some of his acquisitions during the past year.

His most significant deal to date probably was the move last Jan. 31, minutes before the NBA trading deadline, in which veteran forward Gar Heard went to Phoenix in exchange for rookie forward John Shumate. It was a good transaction for both teams as Heard gave the Suns the experience they needed up front, while Shu provided Buffalo with some much needed muscle and shooting ability at the strong forward post. Though only a rookie, Shumate quickly became a key performer for the Braves, and was especially effective in the playoffs against Philadelphia and Boston. His exceptional play included finishing a very close second to Wes Unseld of Washington as the NBA's top field goal shooter.

MacKinnon's most recent achievements included the selection of Notre Dame All-American Adrian Dantley in the annual NBA draft last spring, and some quick last second maneuvering by which the Braves were able to pick veteran ABA guard Bird Averitt in the dispersal draft of former ABA Players last August. Dantley turned out to be the star of the Olympics for the U. S. Basketball team as the squad won the gold medal. Averitt, a quick 6-1 guard, was Kentucky's second leading scorer last season.

Of his transition from coaching to the front office, MacKinnon observed, "I've enjoyed the new role. The two (coaching and serving as general manager) are closely related enough not to miss coaching, and if I wanted to get back into coaching I could."

He cited as the "most interesting part of my job, the acquiring of material the coach and I want to develop into a winning ballclub." MacKinnon added, "The enjoyable part is watching them perform on the court after the team has been assembled."

The general manager views the current edition of the Braves as a stronger unit than that which tied Philadelphia for second place in the Atlantic Division last year. "You've got to remember though, it's a stronger league, too, so we'll keep making improvements where necessary," he emphasized.

Knowing MacKinnon's reputation, that's a sure bet as the Braves once again make a bid for the NBA title in just their seventh season.

TATES LOCKE

Head Coach

When the Buffalo Braves found themselves without a coach last spring, it didn't take long for team officials to select a new one.

Even though he'd had just one year of professional experience, Tate Locke was the logical choice to ascend from the position of assistant coach to the top post.

In his short time in the Braves' organization, Locke had demonstrated why he'd been so successful in the collegiate ranks (a 159-127 record in 11 seasons).

He quickly achieved good rapport with and the respect of the Buffalo players as they soon realized he had the ability to make them a better ballclub.

Dynamic, intense, dedicated — these are the words that probably best describe the man who takes over this season as the Braves' fourth head coach.

Considered more of a disciplinarian than any of the ballclub's previous coaches, Locke wasted little time letting Buffalo basketball fans know what type of team he expects to put on the floor this season. On the day he was appointed head coach early last May, Locke declared, "Buffalo is a working man's town, a fighting man's town and we're going to give them an aggressive ballclub."

Locke, 39, served as the Braves' chief scout last season in addition to his role as assistant coach. When he joined the Buffalo organization in the spring of 1975, Locke brought with him an impressive background that included head coaching jobs at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, Miami (Ohio), and Clemson.

At Army, the Cadets won 41 games while losing just 15 in two seasons. Both years they were semifinalists in the National Invitation Tournament. Then, it was on to the Ohio school where his charges were 56-42 in four seasons.

His last stop on the collegiate scene was at Clemson, and it took him just a couple years to turn the school's basketball program around. Perennial doormats of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference, Locke's teams were 31-23 his last two seasons there, and tied North Carolina and North Carolina State for second place in the 1974-75 ACC competition.

A member of the coaching fraternity for more than 16 years, one of Locke's best friends is Bobby Knight, who directed Indiana to the NCAA championship last spring. Knight was Locke's assistant at West Point.

A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, Tate and his wife, Nancy have a daughter, Kathy, and two sons, John and Michael.

GEORGE J. DADDARIO

Vice President of Sales

It's doubtful if anyone in the Braves' organization has worked harder to make the franchise a success in Buffalo than George Daddario.

Now in his sixth season with the ballclub, Daddario is recognized around the league as one of its top people in the area of ticket sales.

Among his pet projects is the Braves' group ticket program. It is principally through his efforts that Buffalo annually is among the NBA Leaders in this department.

A good-natured, easy-going guy, Daddario is a Buffalo native who gets a hearty "Hiya George" most everywhere he goes in Western New York.

He became a part of the Buffalo sports scene at an early age, earning all-city honors four times in baseball and football at Kensington High School. He also attended the University of Buffalo where he played two years of varsity basketball, and Bryant & Stratton Business Institute (in Buffalo).

Daddario's athletic prowess earned him a shot at professional baseball, and in five minor league seasons with the Detroit and Cleveland organizations, he had a composite batting average of over .300.

He also had a stint as a manager and general manager, handling teams in Guelph, Ont., and Olean, New York.

Daddario returned to his hometown in 1958, and for three seasons served as director of public relations and promotions for the International League Buffalo Bisons. His efforts helped the baseball Bisons establish attendance records.

His next stop was at Bryant & Stratton where he spent nine years with the admissions office. George's lengthy and colorful career also includes several years as basketball coach at Holy Angels Collegiate Institute and Bishop Fallon High School where he twice led his teams into the Manhattan Cup Playoffs.

A good golfer who hits a long ball off the tee, Daddario is one of Buffalo's finest Class B racquetball players. In his "spare time," George spends many hours representing the Braves as an after dinner speaker and talks before service clubs and various organizations.

He and his wife, Lucille who live in Williamsville, have six children, Donna 21, Frank 20, George Jr. 19, Paul 15, Danny 13, and Diane 12.

CHARLIE HARRISON

Assistant Coach, Chief Scout

Charlie Harrison is making his entrance into the NBA's coaching ranks at the tender age of 27. Harrison, a native of Scotland Neck, N. C., was Head Coach Tate Locke's personal choice to be his assistant and the Braves' chief scout.

The two men have been friends for several years, including the 1974-74 and 1974-75 college basketball seasons when Harrison served as an assistant to Locke at Clemson.

"Not only is he a good friend, but a fine judge of talent and I have a tremendous amount of confidence in him and his ability," Locke remarked.

A graduate of Guilford College, Greensboro, N. C., where he majored in biology and chemistry, Harrison was a student assistant coach there for two seasons (1969-71) under Jerry Steele.

From 1971-73, while studying for a master's degree in physiology at Indiana University, Charlie was a graduate assistant under Bobby Knight, a close friend of the Braves' Tate Locke.

Last winter, Harrison was the top assistant to Oklahoma basketball coach, Dave Bliss.

In addition to working under Locke at Clemson, Harrison also has assisted the Braves' new head coach with summer basketball camps for several years.

Harrison, who is single, lists running and fishing among his favorite recreational activities.

RAY MELCHIORRE

Trainer, Traveling Secretary

A vital part of any NBA team is its trainer, and in Ray Melchiorre, the Buffalo Braves have one of the best in all of professional athletics.

This is his fifth season in Buffalo after serving as trainer for the former Pittsburgh Condors of the now defunct American Basketball Association from 1970-72.

Melchiorre works hard to keep Braves players healthy and fit to perform on the basketball court, and also stays abreast of the latest training methods by attending clinics and consulting with his peers.

The 38-year-old Philadelphia native helped institute a new warm-up program with the Braves a couple years ago, and it has helped minimize the possibility of injury.

Melchiorre, who attended Bethel College in McKenzie, Tenn., where he was head trainer and baseball coach for four years, also handles all traveling arrangements for the Braves.

A member of the National Athletic Trainers Association, Ray is an advanced instructor in first aid and emergency care, and is certified in cardio and pulmonary resuscitation.

Most recently, he has taught athletic injuries courses at the State University at Buffalo and Canisius College.

When he has some rare spare time in the winter, Ray and his wife, Liz, enjoy skiing. The couple has two children, Kathy, 8, and Lisa Joy, 3, and the Melchiorres live in Williamsville.

MIKE SHAW

Publicity Director

This is Mike's third year as the Braves' director of publicity and public relations.

He came to the Braves in August 1974 after five years at Niagara University as News Bureau and Sports Information director. In addition, he taught journalism courses in news-writing and feature writing.

The school's 1971-72 basketball guide which Mike compiled and edited, won first place in the 1972 college brochure competition sponsored by the New York State Sportswriters Association.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., Mike is 36 and a 1962 graduate of St. Bonaventure University where he majored in journalism. As an undergraduate there, he was editor of the school newspaper, served as sports director of the campus radio station, was sports editor of the 1962 yearbook, and was head manager and trainer of the varsity basketball team for three years.

After graduation, Mike began his journalism career as State Editor of the Binghamton Sun. He later spent seven years with the Niagara (N. Y.) Gazette, initially as a sports-writer, and then as a news reporter. He became an assistant city editor in 1965 and Western New York editor two years later. Mike remained in that post for two years until his Niagara University appointment in 1969.

The oldest of eight children, Mike has two brothers who are priests in the Diocese of Rochester. He is a past president of the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Church in Lewiston, N. Y., where he currently is a religious education instructor for high school students and a lector for Sunday Mass.

Mike is married to the former Michele Berthot of Niagara Falls. They have two sons, Jeffery, 6, and Matthew, 1, and the Shaws live in Lewiston.

BRAVES' 1976 - 77 PROSPECTUS

by MIKE SHAW
Braves' Publicity Director

A new and enthusiastic young coach, the return for the most part of a veteran squad that finished second in NBA scoring and shooting percentage last year, and the addition of the United States Olympic Basketball Team's top performer, rank as the major assets as the Buffalo Braves embark upon their seventh season.

With the addition of four new teams from the now defunct American Basketball Association, the 1976-77 campaign looms as the most competitive and exciting in NBA history. And, as was the case the last three years, the Braves are expected to be in the thick of the struggle for league laurels.

They'll do it under the direction of new Head Coach Tates Locke, who came to the ballclub just a year ago as former Coach Jack Ramsay's assistant and the team's chief scout.

Though a relative newcomer so far as the NBA is concerned, Locke has paid his dues as a coach, having compiled a 159-127 mark in 11 seasons on the collegiate level.

He is a proven winner and has demonstrated in the past a remarkable ability to get the most out of his players, no matter how tough the competition.

Despite the Braves' 137-109 record during the past three years, and consecutive second place finishes (they tied with Philadelphia last season) in the tough Atlantic Division, Locke feels his ballclub must continue improving to remain a contender.

"We have to be a much more aggressive team than in the past in order to improve, and we're going to employ a team concept on defense and for rebounding," he remarked.

Last season, the Braves were outrebounded over the course of the season by 10 of their opponents. And only one player, Bob McAdoo, averaged in double figures in rebounding. Locke plans to correct that situation, and observed, "Mac can't do it all on the boards. We won't beat anybody with individual rebounding. We have to rebound as a team and must take the initiative." He added, "We've got to be the aggressor and act, not react."

While finishing with the league's second highest scoring average of 107.3 points a game last year, the Braves were near the bottom of the ladder in points allowed, ranking 15th with a 106.4 average.

"It's not good enough if one or two guys work on defense. We have to play good team defense to win in this league, and that's something we're going to devote considerable time to this year," Locke noted.

The new Braves mentor inherits a veteran ballclub that many feel may be just a player away from winning a championship.

On the front line the Braves have Bob McAdoo at center, the NBA's top scorer the last three seasons, and perhaps the finest outside shooting big man in the history of the game. At the strong forward post is rugged John Shumate, who came to Buffalo during the All-Star break last January in a trade with Phoenix for Gar Heard. All Shu did in his rookie year was lead the league in field goal percentage most of the season before losing the title to Wes Unseld on the last day.

Joining the ballclub this season at the small forward post is Adrian Dantley, the Notre Dame Consensus All-American, who was easily the outstanding player for the U.S. Olympic basketball team at Montreal. He was the team's top scorer with 116 points (19.3 average) in six games and was brilliant in the championship contest against Yugoslavia. A.D. had 30 points as the Americans won the gold medal and regained the title they lost to Russia four years ago.

As backup men up front, the Braves have capable veteran performers in Don Adams and Dale Schlueter. Yet to really prove himself, though he played extremely well on occasion last season, is 6-11 former Maryland All-American Tom McMillen. Tom underwent surgery on his nose mid-way through 1975-76 and saw little action during the last part of the campaign.

"I think we're sound up front and Tom will certainly play a much greater role this season. He's an intelligent young man and the best passer among our inside men," Locke noted.

In the backcourt, the Braves will line up with playmaker Ernie DiGregorio and Randy Smith, the spectacular guard who earned NBA second team all-star honors last year.

DiGregorio had a frustrating year at best last season. He started in the team's first 19 games, then was relegated to the role of a reserve for most of the season. However, in the semifinal playoff series against Boston, Ernie was nothing short of spectacular, and proved once and for all his value as a playmaker and a key man in the Braves' offense. As Hall of Famer Bob Cousy commented once last season, "There is no guard in the NBA better at getting the ball up court quickly than Ernie."

Randy had his best season ever in 1975-76, averaging 21.8 points a game. He shot nearly 50 per cent from the field, and perhaps more importantly, hit 81.7 per cent of his free throws. He ranked seventh in league scoring and also was seventh in assists. And for the first time, he was selected to play in the annual NBA All-Star game.

He has come a long way since his first NBA season in 1971-72 and now is regarded as one of the league's premier guards.

The Braves also have William "Bird" Averitt, acquired in the NBA dispersal draft of former ABA players last August.

On paper, the Braves appear fairly solid, needing perhaps one more backcourt man who can come into a game and do a good job defensively.

After watching the NBA wars for just one season, Locke isn't about to predict how the Braves will do this year. "I can promise you we'll be ready, but the Atlantic Division is by far the toughest in the NBA, and the league itself will be more competitive than ever before," he observed.

MEET THE BUFFALO BRAVES

10 DON ADAMS

Position: Forward

Height: 6-7

Weight: 210

Age: 28

Born: Nov. 27, 1947, Atlanta Ga.

High School: South Fulton, Ga.

College: Northwestern '70

Residence: Southfield, Michigan

NBA Experience: San Diego, Houston, Atlanta, Detroit, St. Louis (ABA), Buffalo, 7th year.

How Acquired: Free Agent, 12-5-75

THIS SEASON: A valuable guy to have around because of his experience, defensive ability and intelligent style of play, Don probably will be used as a backup at both the small and strong forward positions. He also is regarded as one of the better passers among the NBA's big men.

LAST YEAR: Don joined the Braves early in December 1975 and proved to be an excellent acquisition for the ballclub. A tough performer, who doesn't back down from anyone, Adams saw action mainly as a reserve in the strong forward post. Averaging about 12½ minutes a game, Don had a 3.1 scoring average and 2.6 rebounds per contest. He had 19 points in a game against Kansas City just four days after coming to the Braves, and hit a season high 20 points at Houston in March.

CAREER HISTORY: A six-year veteran of professional basketball, Don has played for four NBA teams and also the St. Louis Spirits of the former American Basketball Association. While at St. Louis during the latter half of the 1974-75 season, he played under current Braves General Manager Bob MacKinnon. He had been acquired by the Spirits after being waived by Detroit in February 1975 and was not picked up by any other NBA ballclub. All Don did once he got to St. Louis was to help get MacKinnon's young team into the ABA playoffs. Then, they pulled off one of the great sports upsets of all-time by eliminating the defending champion New York Nets. Don was San Diego's (now Houston) eighth round draft choice in 1970 after a fine career at Northwestern where he averaged 15 points a game and earned All-Big Ten honors. He also played one season in Atlanta and two and a half years in Detroit. His best season pointwise was as a rookie when he tallied 973 for an 11.4 average.

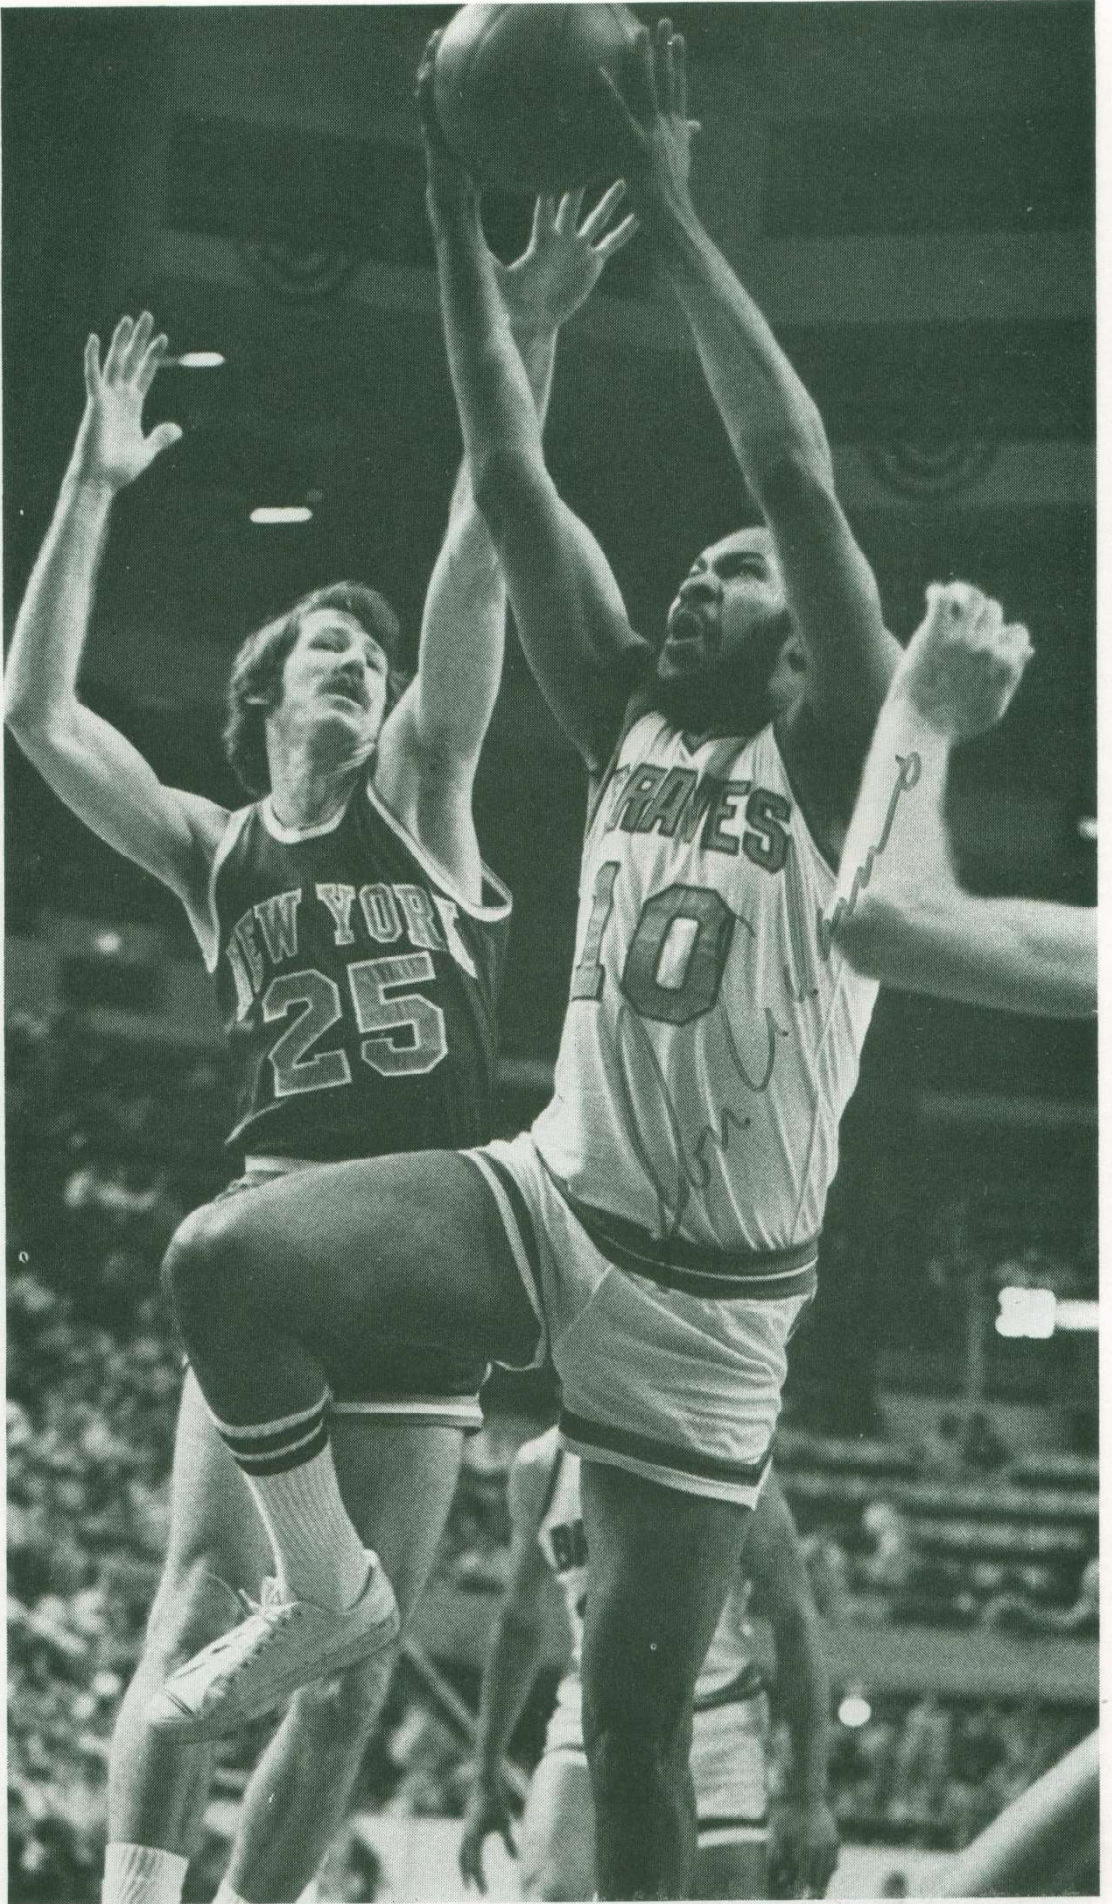

PERSONAL NOTES: Don and his wife, Mary, have a son, Don Jr., 1. Adams and his family reside in the Detroit suburb of Southfield during the off-season. Don spent a good portion of the past summer at the All-Pro Basketball Camp in the Pocono Mountains. The camp is run by his good friend and former teammate at Detroit, Dave Bing.

14 WILLIAM "BIRD" AVERITT

Position: Guard
Height: 6-2
Weight: 175
Age: 24
Born: July 22, 1952, Hopkinsville, Ky.
High School: Hopkinsville High
College: Pepperdine '74
Residence: Los Angeles
Experience S. Antonio, Kentucky (ABA) 4th yr.
How Acquired: 1st Round, '76 Dispersal Draft

THIS SEASON: Bird is participating in his first NBA season after playing in the ABA for three years. A gifted athlete with great speed and quickness, he most likely will be the Braves' third guard behind Randy Smith and Ernie DiGregorio. An excellent offensive player, Bird's value to the Braves will increase as he improves the defensive phase of his game.

LAST YEAR: Averitt was the Kentucky Colonels' second leading scorer behind Artis Gillmore with a 17.9 average. He made better than 44 per cent of his two-point field goal attempts and led the Colonels in steals with 105. He also had the second highest number of assists on the ballclub with 297.

CAREER HISTORY: Bird was obtained by the Braves in the dispersal draft of former ABA players last August, and was the seventh player selected in the first round. He played his college ball at Pepperdine, and as a junior, led the nation in scoring with a 33.9 average. He gave up his final year of eligibility to sign with San Antonio. Bird averaged 11.5 points a game in his first season and was named to the ABA All-Rookie squad. He spent the last two years at Kentucky after going to the Colonels in June 1974 in exchange for a second round draft choice and other considerations. Bird's lifetime scoring average is 14.2 ppg., and he made 42.2 per cent of his field goal attempts from the two-point area. Braves General Manager Bob MacKinnon said Averitt resembles the New York Nets' Nate Archibald in his style of play. He also described the Braves' new guard as an "excellent penetrator," who was a great one-on-one player in the ABA. Averitt holds a flock of Pepperdine scoring records, among them the top two single season scoring averages, and career scoring average. He also holds the school's single game high of 57 points.

PERSONAL NOTES: Averitt is a lefthander. Although he plays basketball the year round, Bird also is an excellent tennis player and also likes to bowl. He is a native of Hopkinsville, Ky., and underwent a tonsillectomy there during the summer.

44 ADRIAN DANTLEY

Position: Forward

Height: 6-5

Weight: 210

Age: 20

Born: Feb. 26, 1956, Washington, D.C.

High School: DeMatha, Hyattsville, Md.

College: Notre Dame '77

Residence: Washington, D.C.

Experience: 1st year

How Acquired: 1st Round, 1976 Draft

THIS SEASON: With the departure of former Braves Capt. Jim McMillian, Dantley is a sure bet to take over the Braves' small forward position. His ability to outrebound much bigger players should give Buffalo added strength on the boards during 1976-77.

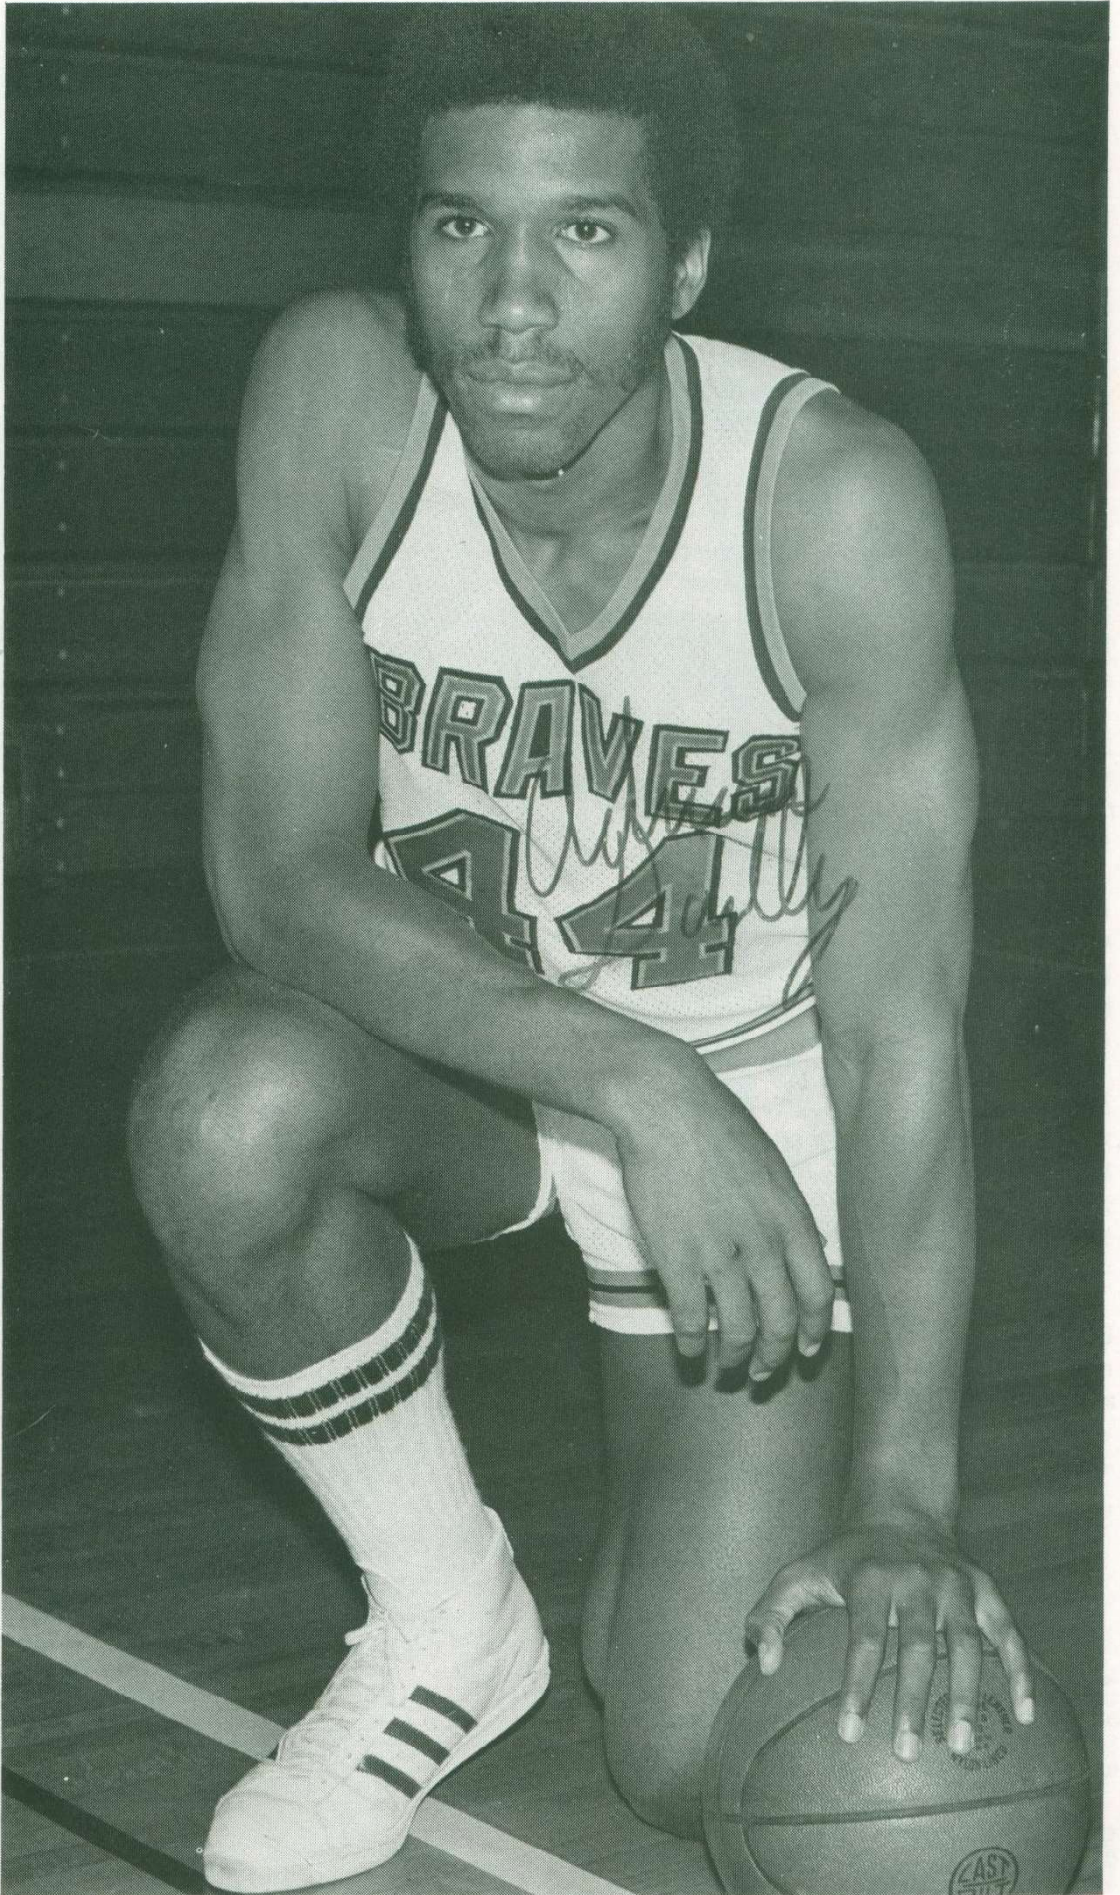

LAST YEAR: A consensus All-American, Adrian led the Irish in scoring with a 28.6 average while making nearly 59 per cent of his field goal attempts. He also averaged 10.1 rebounds a game. His season high was 41 points against LaSalle. During the 1975-76 campaign, he also established a rebounding career high with 21 against West Virginia. He was Notre Dame's leading scorer in 27 of the team's 29 games last year, and won rebounding honors 13 times while sharing the laurels on six other occasions. Dantley was an Irish co-captain in 1975-76.

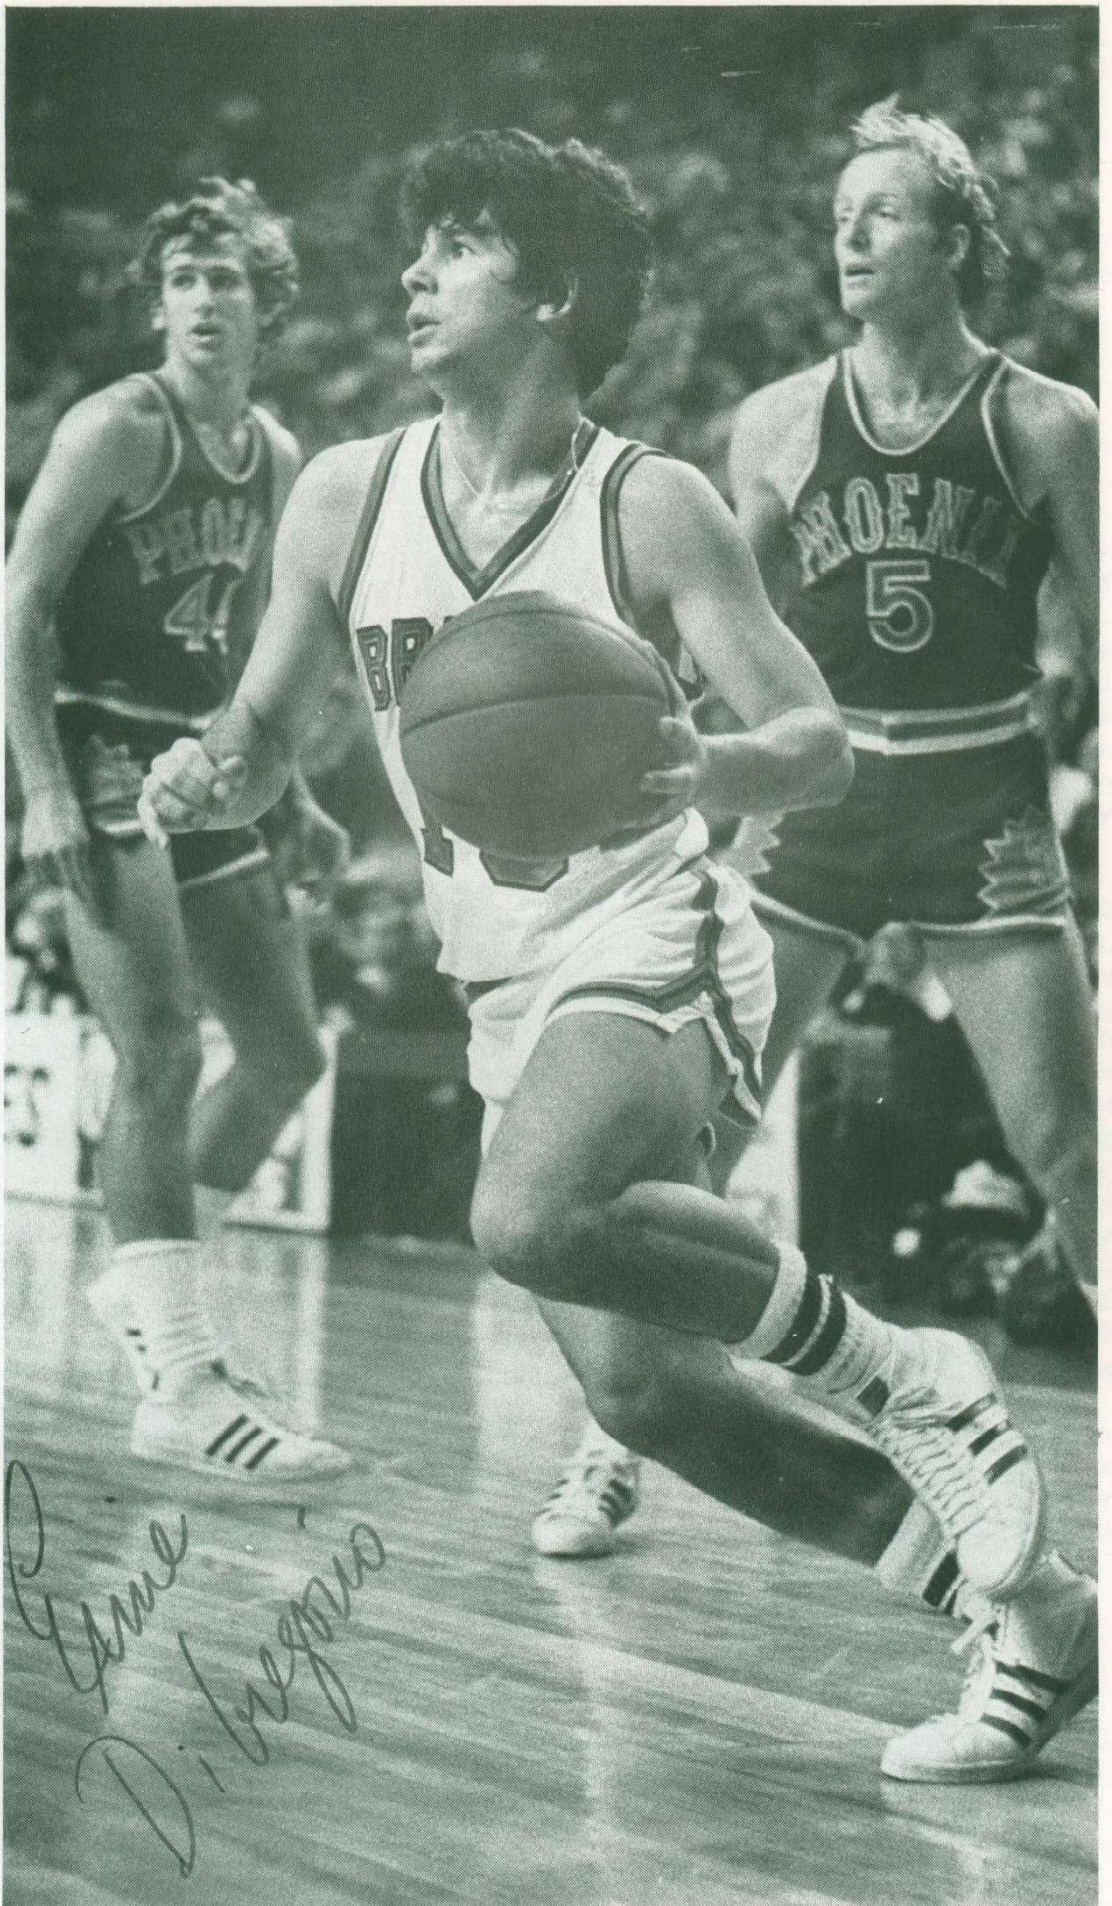

CAREER HISTORY: A.D. climaxed his brilliant career with a sensational performance in the 21st Olympiad last summer, leading the U.S. basketball team to a 6-0 record and the gold medal. Dantley was the leading scorer with 116 points (19.3 average), and had 30 in the championship contest against Yugoslavia despite suffering a gash over his right eye that required eight stitches. He is only the ninth player in NCAA history to be cited as a two-time consensus All-American. David Thompson, the former North Carolina State star, now with Denver, is the only other forward to receive that distinction. Adrian ranks second only to Austin Carr on Notre Dame's all-time scoring list with 2223 career points in just three varsity seasons. He finished with a college scoring average of 25.8, but averaged 29.5 over his last two seasons. During the 1975-76 season, he made 58.9 per cent of his field goal attempts, and hit a spectacular 56.2 per cent from the field in three years at ND. A durable athlete, Dantley missed just one game during his college career while averaging better than 34 minutes per contest. His career scoring high was 49 points against the Air Force Academy during the 1974-75 season. One of his biggest admirers is Marquette Coach Al McGuire who once commented, "Dantley is like a great fighter. You can't get to him mentally. He just keeps coming at you."

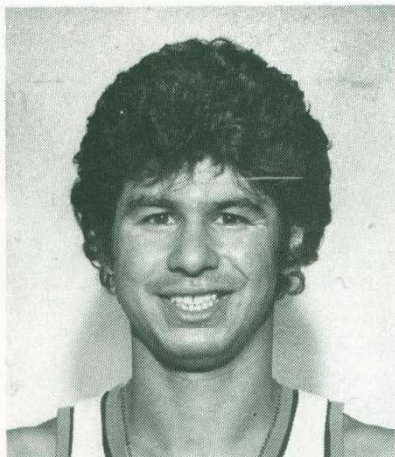

PERSONAL NOTES: Adrian lives in Washington, D.C., during the off-season. In early September, he participated in the annual Superstars Competition. He majored in economics at Notre Dame, and plans to complete his degree work there next summer. A.D. had a year of college eligibility remaining, but decided to turn professional instead. Dantley and the Braves' power forward John Shumate were teammates at ND.

 RING THE BELL

THIS SEASON: There isn't a member of the Braves who has more to prove this year than Ernie DiGregorio. Ever since his rookie season in 1973-74, Ernie's career has been on a treadmill. He's determined to show why he was considered two years ago, one of the most promising young guards in the NBA. Look for Ernie to regain his role as the guy whose clever playmaking talents helped make the Braves the highest scoring team in the NBA in 1973-74.

LAST YEAR: Ernie will be the first to admit the 1975-76 season was the most disappointing of his basketball career. After starting the team's first 19 games, Ernie D was an infrequent starter the rest of the way. He wound up shooting a poor 38.4 per cent from the field, but maintained his reputation as one of the NBA's top free throw shooters making 91.5 per cent from the line. His value to the Braves was clearly illustrated in their semifinal playoff series with Boston last spring. Coming off the bench in the second game, he led a surge in which the Braves rallied from a 13-point deficit before eventually losing. He started the last four games of the series and contributed 29 assists while making 52.7 per cent of his shots from the field. There are many who felt that had Ernie started from the opening game of the series, the Braves might well have beaten the Celtics.

CAREER HISTORY: After a brilliant first season in which he won rookie of the year honors and the league's free throw percentage and assist titles, Ernie played just 31 games in 1974-75 after undergoing left knee surgery to remove torn cartilage. He had hoped to make his comeback complete last season, but, for a variety of reasons, it didn't turn out that way. His 663 assists as a rookie still stand as a Braves record. Ernie played in 67 of the team's 82 games last season, an average 6.7 points per contest, while averaging just slightly over 20 minutes of playing time per contest.

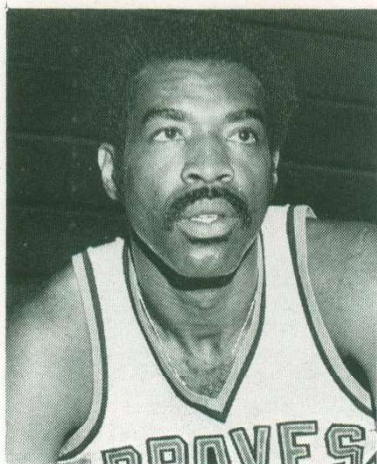

PERSONAL NOTES: The past summer was a busy one for Ernie who conducted two basketball camps at Villa Maria Academy, one for boys and the other for girls. He also attended a number of other camps. On Labor Day, he came into Buffalo from his home in Lincoln, R.I., to serve as an honorary chairman for the annual Muscular Dystrophy Telethon which was aired on WGR-TV. His appearance resulted in pledges totaling well over $30,000. In June, Ernie's wife Susan, gave birth to their second daughter, Melissa. Their first child, Tara Rae marked her second birthday in June.

5 FRED FOSTER

Position: Forward

Height: 6-5

Weight: 220

Age: 30

Born: 3-18-46, Springfield, O.

High School: Springfield South

College: Miami (O.) '68

Residence: Los Angeles

NBA Experience: Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, 8th year

How Acquired: Free Agent, Sept. 1976

THIS SEASON: A veteran of seven NBA seasons, Fred is back with his former college coach, Bates Locke, and is eager to contribute his considerable talents to the Braves' cause. A player with plenty of savvy, Foster should fill very nicely the ballclub's need for a backup small forward to spell rookie Adrian Dantley on occasion. Fred has proven he can do the job both offensively and defensively.

LAST YEAR: After being traded to Chicago from Cleveland, he was waived on the final day of the Bulls' training camp. He then spent last winter taking courses at Oakland University.

CAREER HISTORY: A 1968 graduate of Miami (O.) University, he ranks as one of the finest athletes ever to play there. Fred was the old Cincinnati Royals' third round draft choice in '68, and spent two seasons with them. He was traded to Philadelphia in October 1970 and later to Detroit in July 1972. The Pistons placed him on waivers early in October 1973, but he was signed as a free agent by Cleveland later that month. His lifetime NBA scoring average is 8.3, and he's made better than 41 per cent of his field goal attempts over seven seasons. His most productive campaign was in 1969-70 at Cincinnati where he was the fifth highest scorer, averaging slightly under 15 points a game. He made nearly 45 per cent of his field goal attempts and was credited with 107 assists.

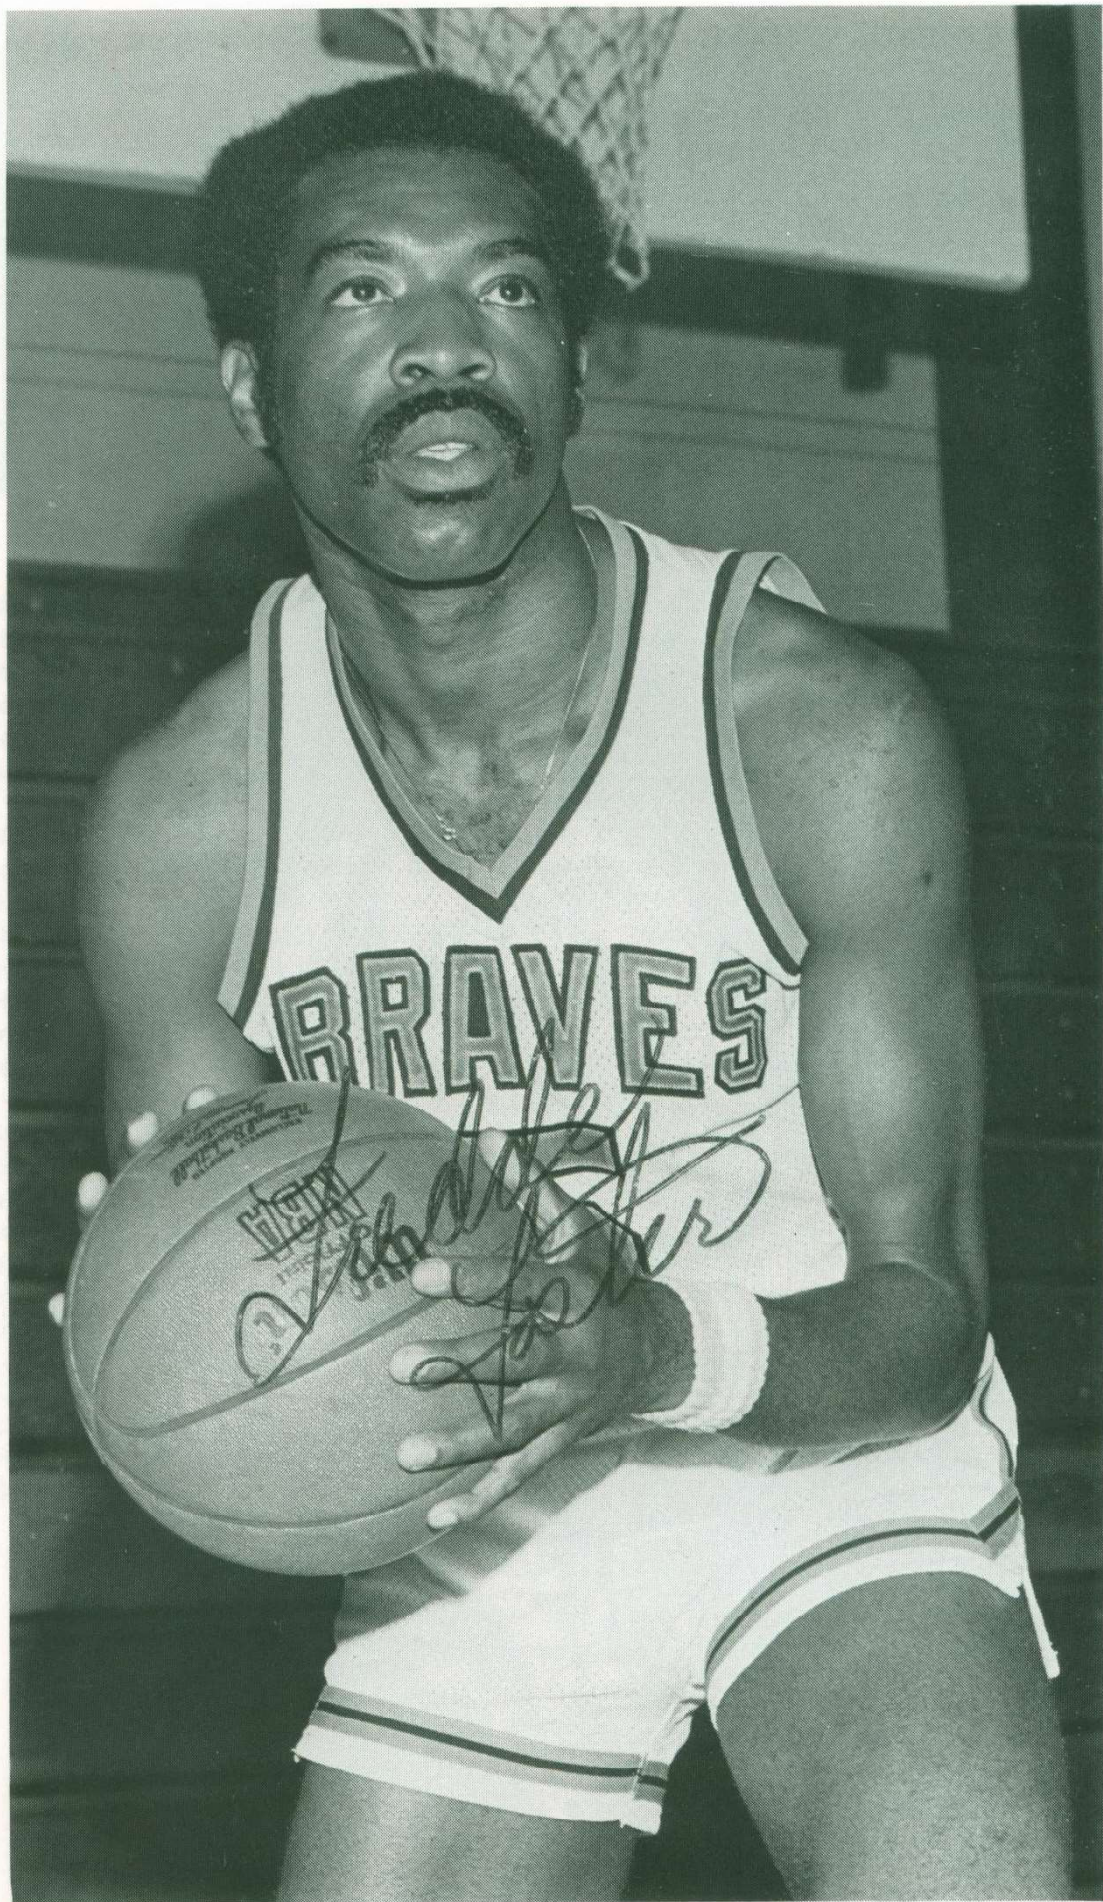

PERSONAL NOTES: A native of Springfield, Ohio, the 30-year-old Foster now resides in Los Angeles during the off-season. While playing in the Philadelphia Baker League last summer, he averaged 23 points a game during the regular competition, and 28 ppg. in the playoffs. He enjoys playing tennis and golf and lists photography among his hobbies.

11 BOB McADOO

Position: Center

Height: 6-10

Weight: 215

Age: 25

Born: Sept. 25, 1951, Greensboro, N. C.

High School: Ben L. Smith, Greensboro

College: North Carolina '73

Residence: Greensboro, N. C.

NBA Experience: Buffalo, 5th year

How Acquired: 1st Round, 1972 draft

Awards Last Season: NBA Scoring Title
(3rd straight year)

THIS SEASON: A proud and determined young man who has won three straight NBA scoring titles, Mac can become only the second player in league history to win four in a row. However, he wouldn't mind a bit relinquishing that honor if he could lead the Braves to the Atlantic Division or NBA championship this year. Now in his fifth season with Buffalo though he just turned 25, McAdoo wants more than anything to see the Braves "win something" this time. Before the season gets too far along, Mac will become the first Brave to score 10,000 points.

LAST YEAR: Winning NBA scoring titles are becoming almost automatic with McAdoo. In capturing his third consecutive crown last year, he took his place alongside some of the great NBA stars of the past. Only three other players have ever won three or more consecutive scoring titles. The great George Mikan was the first to do it, and then Neil Johnston. Wilt Chamberlain won an incredible seven in a row. Overall, Mac averaged 31.1 points a game last season while playing in 78 of the team's 82 contests. He also was the league's seventh best rebounder with a 12.4 average, and was sixth in blocked shots at the rate of 2.05 per game. His scoring average last season was the second best of his brief career. He averaged 34.5 in winning the title in 1974-75.

CAREER: Aiming to become the best outside shooting big man in NBA history, McAdoo has tallied 8,960 in four seasons, a 28.5 average. In each of his last three years, he's been well over the 2,000 points plateau. His 8,960 points and 3,965 rebounds rank him as the Braves' all-time leader in both departments. He also has increased his assists total each season, beginning with 139 in his rookie year and reaching his all-time high of 315 last season. Along with three straight scoring titles, he was the league's MVP in 1974-75, won two CBS Player of the Year awards, and has captured numerous other honors.

PERSONAL NOTES: Mac has spent his recent summers running a basketball league in his hometown of Greensboro. And for the last two summers, he has conducted clinics in prisons in North Carolina. He and his wife, Brenda, have two children, Robert III, who is three, and Rita, born December 1, 1975. Brenda is enrolled in Law School at the University of Buffalo.

52 TOM McMILLEN

Position: Forward-Center
Height: 6-11
Weight: 215
Age: 24
Born: May 26, 1952, Mansfield, Pa.
High School: Mansfield
College: Maryland '74
Residence: Washington, D.C.
NBA Experience: Buffalo, 2nd year
How Acquired: 1st Round, 1974 Draft

THIS SEASON: Look for Tom to get considerably more playing time than he did a year ago. An excellent shooter, he is an intelligent young man who is easily the best passer among the Braves' big men. Tom is likely to be used primarily as a backup to John Shumate at strong forward, and on occasion as Bob McAdoo's relief at center.

LAST YEAR: Tom entered his rookie year with high hopes, but a broken nose and surgery during the All-Star break to correct a deviated septum, shelved him for a good portion of the season. Ironically, he had started several games shortly before undergoing the surgery, but by the time he returned to action, the Braves had traded strong forward Gar Heard to Phoenix in exchange for John Shumate. The latter quickly established himself as Heard's replacement and kept the job for the balance of the year. Tom averaged 14.2 minutes a game last season and 4.7 points per contest.

CAREER HISTORY: A three-time All-American at the University of Maryland, McMillen holds the school's all-time scoring record of 1,807 points in three varsity seasons. He was the most valuable player in the 1972 National Invitation Tournament as the Terps won the championship. Maryland won 73 of 90 games during his three varsity seasons and was 19-4 in post-season play. He played for the United States Olympic Basketball team in 1972 at Munich, and is the only Rhodes Scholar in Maryland history. During the winter of 1974, he played basketball in Bologna, Italy, averaging 32 points a game.

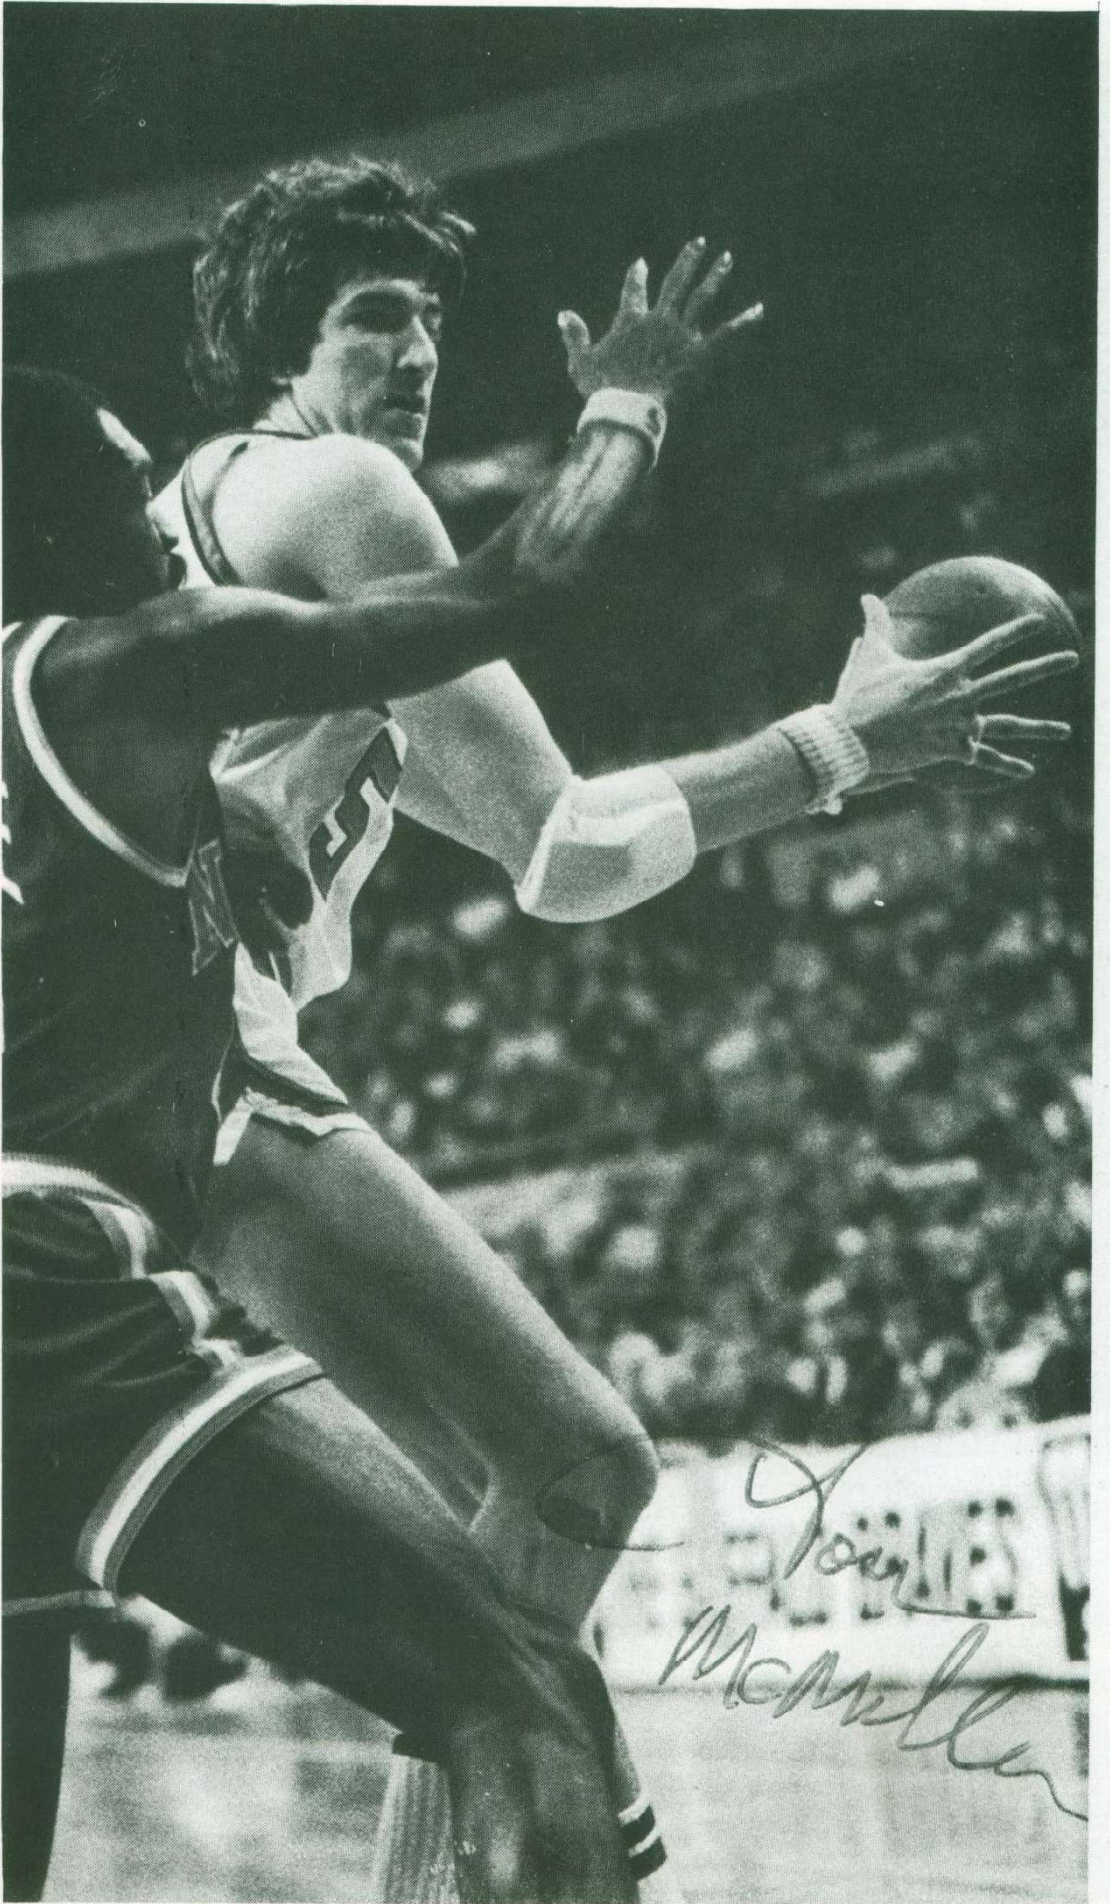

PERSONAL NOTES: An Academic All-American for three years at Maryland, Tom was a pre-med major compiling a 3.8 grade point average out of a possible 4. He spent 1974-75 in England at the University of Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar. His area of concentration is economics, politics and philosophy. Tom also studied at Oxford during the past summer and will complete his scholarship requirements there by the summer of 1978. In addition, each summer, he conducts his own basketball camp for youngsters at Cape Herlopen State Park in Lewes, Del. Tom also lectured at the Buffalo Braves camp for young players this summer.

21 JOHNNY NEUMANN

Position: Guard

Height: 6-6

Weight: 200

Age: 25

Born: Sept. 11, 1951, Memphis, Tenn.

High School: Overton, Memphis

College: Mississippi

Residence: Salt Lake City, Utah

Experience: Memphis, Utah, Virginia, Indiana, Kentucky (ABA) 6th yr.

How Acquired: Free Agent, August, 1976

THIS SEASON: Neumann, a teammate of Bird Averitt at Kentucky last year, was signed by the Braves in August as a free agent. A big guard at 6-6, Johnny is a good shooter and will likely be used mostly in reserve roles.

LAST YEAR: He split the 1975-76 season between Virginia and Kentucky, averaging 13.1 points a game for the entire year. He played 35 games with the Squires before joining the Colonels about mid-season. At Kentucky, he was used as a reserve and averaged about 19 minutes a game while carrying a 10.1 scoring average. He was with the Colonels for 42 games and made better than 46 per cent of his two-point field goal attempts.

CAREER HISTORY: Neumann played five seasons in the now defunct American Basketball Association, signing first with the Memphis Pros in 1971 after his second year season at Mississippi. As a sophomore, he was the top college scorer in the nation, averaging 40.1 points a game. The All-American guard tallied 63 points in one game, and scored over 50 points five times during his brief college career. The 923 points he scored as a sophomore still stands as a school record at Mississippi. Johnny played two and a half seasons at Memphis before going to Utah in a trade in January 1974. He finished the season at Utah, but was in Virginia for the start of the 1974-75 campaign. After playing just four games for the Squires, he was traded to Indiana in November 1974 and finished the season there. The next year he was back in a Virginia uniform again before finishing out the 1975-76 season with Kentucky. His best season was in 1972-73 when he scored 1548 points (19.5 average) at Memphis, and was credited with 470 assists. He has a career scoring average of 14.9 points a game.

PERSONAL NOTES: Neumann is a native of Memphis, and now resides in Salt Lake City, Utah in the off-season. He spent the summer playing golf and tennis with his good friend Ron Boone of the Kansas City Kings.

54 DALE SCHLUETER

Position: Center

Height: 6-10

Weight: 235

Age: 30

Born: Nov. 12, 1945, Tacoma, Washington

High School: George Washington, Denver

College: Colorado State '67

Residence: Lake Oswego, Oregon

NBA Experience: San Francisco, Portland, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Buffalo, 9th year.

How Acquired: Purchased from Atlanta, Aug. 29, 1974.

THIS SEASON: A big, good-natured guy, who plies his talents in rugged fashion on the basketball court, Dale is in his third year with the Braves. Once again, he'll likely be used as a reserve to fill in for starting center Bob McAdoo.

LAST YEAR: Dale's inspirational play and tenacity not only made him a valued member of the Braves, but a big hit with the Buffalo fans, too. He saw action in 71 of the team's 82 games, averaging about 11 minutes per contest. His scoring and rebounding averages were 2.5 and 3.2 respectively, but Dale continued to show he's still got a good shooting touch from outside as he hit exactly 50 per cent of his 122 field goal attempts. His major contributions came as Bob McAdoo's backup. On occasion, he played center with Mac moving to the strong forward slot.

CAREER HISTORY: Schlueter is an eight-year veteran of NBA wars, and long ago established himself as one of the league's most courageous and unselfish performers. The 30-year-old journeyman who will be 31 in November, played with four other NBA teams (San Francisco, Portland, Philadelphia and Atlanta) before coming to the Braves from the Hawks in August, 1974. Not a particularly great scorer, Schlueter's strong-points are his defense and rebounding. He also is a pretty fair passer. In 1971, while at Portland, he had 285 assists, the third best total among the league's centers. Dale has a 5.7 career scoring average and is averaging 5.5 rebounds. He needs just 67 more to hit 3,000 rebounds for his career. Schlueter also has one of the better lifetime field goal percentages among the league's big men, having made 50.2 per cent of his attempts. A graduate of Colorado State, he was San Francisco's sixth round draft choice in 1967.

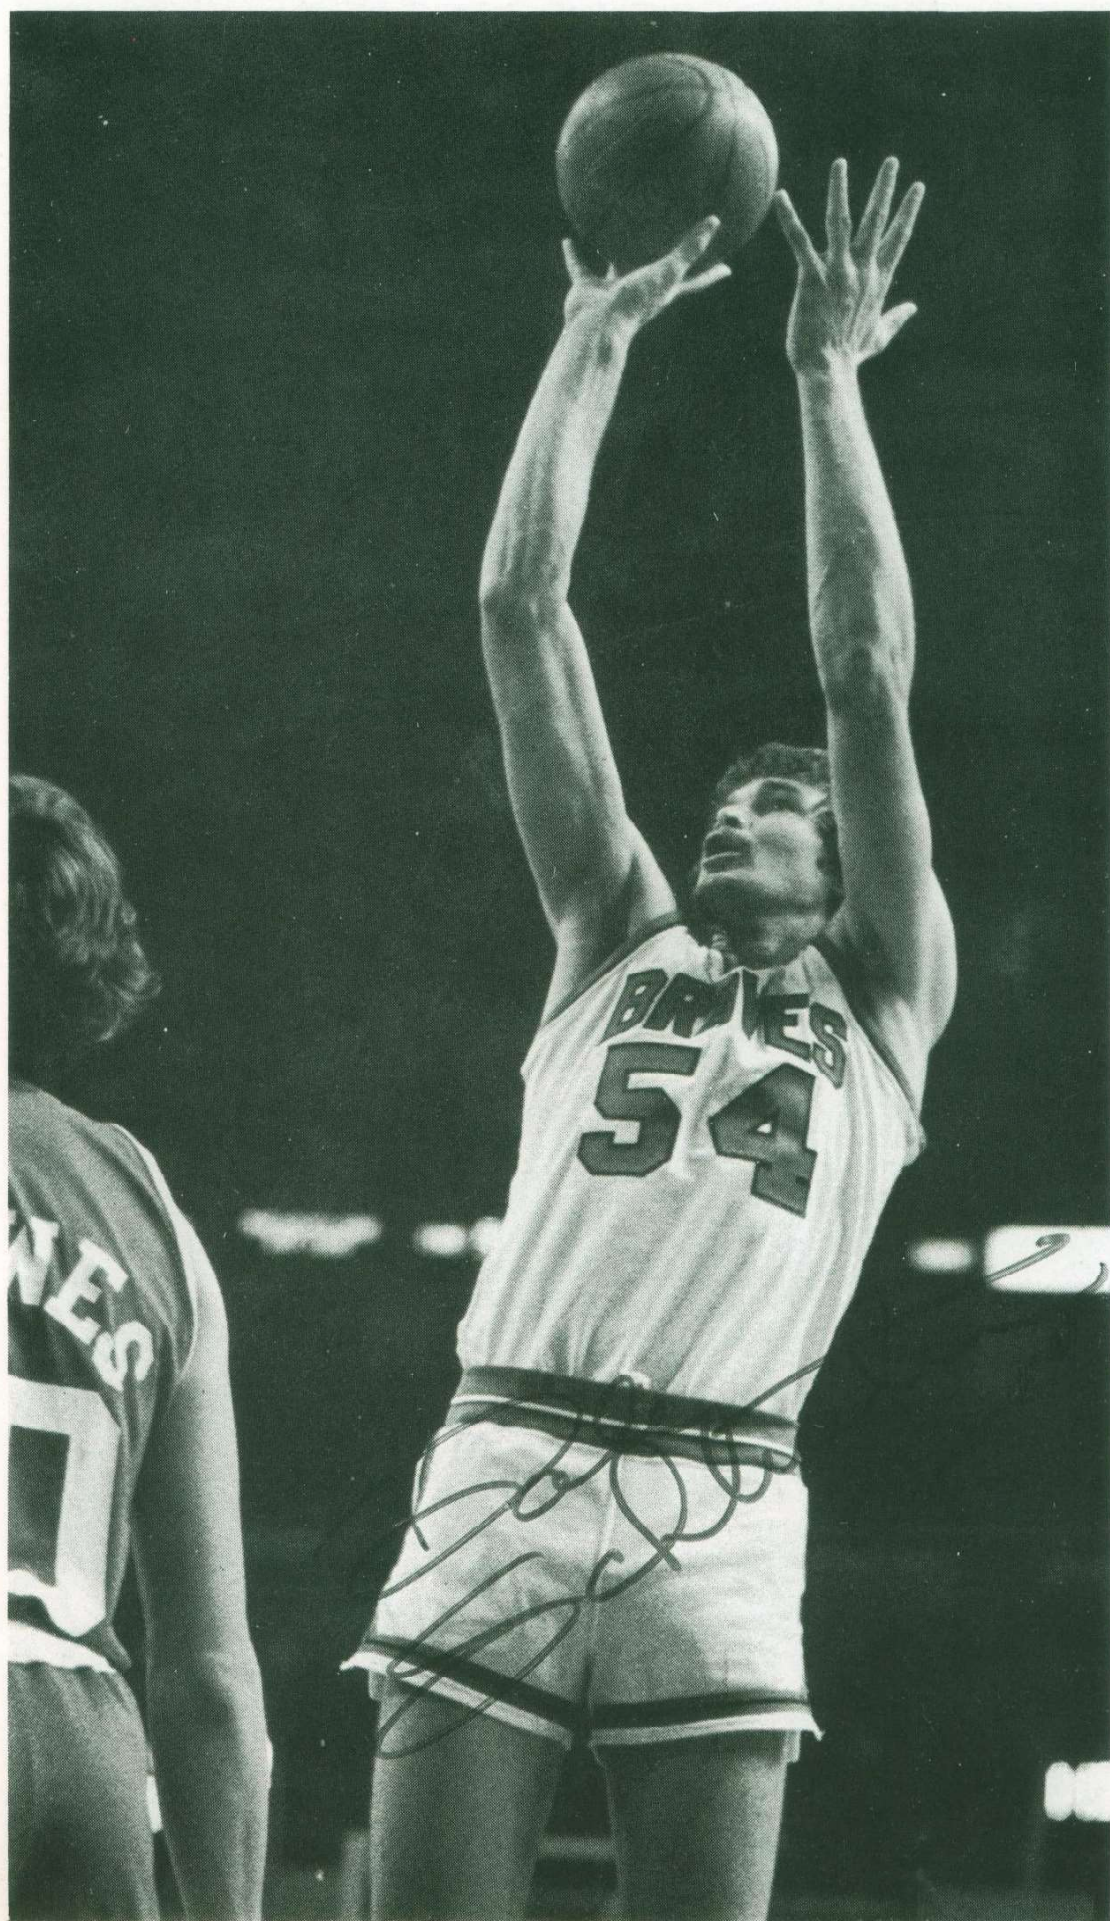

PERSONAL NOTES: Dale is one of the most personable guys in the NBA and has done a tremendous job for the Braves in public relations. He is a frequent speaker before groups, and was an honorary chairman for the local Girl Scout cookie drive last winter. His wife, Debbie, gave birth to their second daughter, Gretchen Nichole, last June. Their other daughter, Kirsten, is four.

34 JOHN SHUMATE

Position: Forward-Center

Height: 6-9

Weight: 235

Age: 24

Born: April 6, 1952, Greenville, S. C.

High School: Thomas Jefferson, Elizabeth, N. J.

College: Notre Dame '74

Residence: Elizabeth, N. J.

NBA Experience: Phoenix, Buffalo, 2nd year.

How Acquired: Trade with Phoenix for Gar Heard, Feb. 1, 1976.

Awards Last Season: NBA All-Rookie Team
Maurice Stokes Award

THIS SEASON: John will be playing his first full year in Buffalo after coming to the Braves Jan. 31, 1976 from Phoenix in a trade with the Suns for Gar Heard. Coach Tate Locke not only will rely on him to give the Braves some scoring punch inside, but also to provide the ballclub with the strong rebounding it needs at the power forward position. Look for John to really come into his own this season.

LAST YEAR: After coming to the Braves during the All-Star break, Shu played in 32 games, averaging 12.2 points and 9.8 rebounds per contest. Overall, he had an 11.7 scoring average and grabbed 7.4 rebounds. John kept improving as the season progressed and soon adjusted to the Braves' style of play. His performances in the 1976 playoffs against Philadelphia and Boston were brilliant for the rookie who had been forced to endure so much adversity. Braves fans will not soon forget his courageous performance in the final game of the Atlantic Division playoff series with Philadelphia. He suffered a concussion in the second game of the best-of-three set, spent a day in the hospital, and less than 48 hours after being injured, was back in uniform for the deciding game at the Spectrum. He was nothing short of spectacular, scoring 23 points, while hauling in 10 rebounds and making an incredible 10 of 12 field goal attempts as Buffalo beat the 76ers by a point in overtime. His play during the 1975-76 season earned him a spot on the league's All-Rookie squad. John just missed winning the league's field goal percentage title after leading the category most of the season. He finished with a percentage of .56081 to .56085 for Washington's Wes Unseld.

CAREER HISTORY: John, a former Notre Dame All-American who led the Irish to the 1973 National Invitation Tournament championship, was Phoenix's first round draft choice in 1974 and the fourth player selected. However, he was forced to miss the 1974-75 NBA campaign when blood clots from a phlebitis condition were discovered in his left lung. He underwent an eight month therapy program. Once given the okay to resume workouts, he gradually got himself into shape and was the leading scorer in the tough New York Rucker League with a 36.1 average. In the 1973 NIT, he made 20 straight field goals over a two-game span, and won the MVP award, the same prize won by teammate Tom McMillen the previous year. Shumate is Notre Dame's all-time field goal leader as he made 62.7 per cent of his attempts.

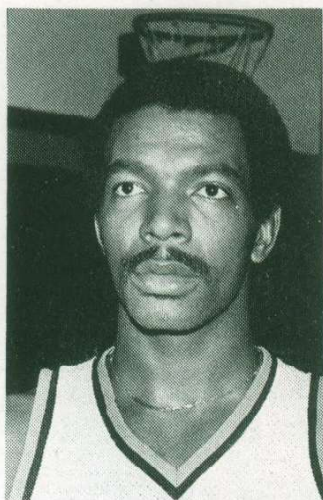

PERSONAL NOTES: John spent the summer playing ball and doing some running. He also participated in a number of clinics for youngsters. John divided his time between Arizona and New Jersey where his parents live. His dad is a Pentecostal minister, and he described John as a young man with a "tremendous amount of faith."

9 RANDY SMITH

Position: Guard

Height: 6-3

Weight: 180

Age: 27

Born: Dec. 12, 1948, Bellport, L. I.

High School: Bellport High School

College: Buffalo State '71

Residence: Buffalo

NBA Experience: Buffalo, 6th year

How Acquired: 7th Round draft choice, 1971

Awards Last Season: NBA All League - 2nd Team

THIS SEASON: As he begins his seventh pro season, Randy is ready to pick up where he left off last year when he proved once and for all he is one of the NBA's great guards. Since entering the league in 1971, Randy has gotten better and better. One of the finest all-round athletes ever to play in the NBA, he'll be out to prove he deserves the acclaim he received last year.

LAST YEAR: The 1975-76 was by far the most spectacular and productive in Randy's five-year NBA career. For the first time, he averaged over 20 points a game, finishing with a 21.8 average to rank seventh in the league. In addition, he was seventh in assists, averaging 5.9 per contest. His field goal and free throw percentages were the best of his career as he made 49.4 per cent of his shots and 81.7 per cent from the free throw line. Another first in his career was his selection for the annual NBA All-Star game. But, his most satisfying moment came after the season when it was announced he has been named to the second unit of the NBA's All-League team. He was the only Brave to make either team.

CAREER HISTORY: There are many who just shake their heads in disbelief when they watch Randy "do his thing" on the basketball court. An amazing athlete who gained All-America honors in basketball, soccer and track at his alma mater, Buffalo State, Randy has gradually earned justifiable recognition as one of the NBA's premier backcourt men. The Braves' seventh round draft choice in 1971, Randy's speed and exciting style of play has made him a favorite around the league. The tremendous progress he's made since his rookie year is reflected in his free throw percentage of 81.7 last season. That's a far cry from the 62.2 per cent he averaged from the line as a rookie. Not only is he a skilled athlete, but a durable one. Randy has played in 349 consecutive games, and hasn't missed one since Feb. 15, 1972 in his rookie year. He is Buffalo's all-time leader in minutes played (13,610) and games played (404). Including playoffs, he has played in 371 consecutive games.

PERSONAL NOTES: Randy resides in Buffalo the year round. He took several courses at Buffalo State during the past summer, and is considering graduate school in the future. He spends a good deal of time in the off-season conducting basketball clinics for youngsters in the Western New York area. Randy was the MVP in the Charles Baker League "Classic - 76" All-Star Game in Philadelphia during the summer.

12 CLAUDE TERRY

Position: Guard
Height: 6-4
Weight: 195
Age: 26
Born: 1-12-50, Salida, Calif.
High School: Modesto High
College: Stanford '72
Residence: Modesto, Calif.
Experience: Denver (ABA), 4th year
How Acquired: Trade with Denver 9-21-76

THIS SEASON: The four-year ABA veteran came to the Braves from Denver at the start of training camp and not only displayed fine shooting ability, but good passing skills. The 6-4 guard most likely will be used during the 1976-77 season as a backup to starters Ernie DiGregorio and Randy Smith. But, that's nothing new for the 26-year-old Terry, who has performed well in the past as a reserve.

LAST YEAR: The 1975-76 season was his best as a professional. He averaged 7.2 points a game, and made nearly 47 per cent of his field goal attempts. In addition, he had 14 points in the 1975-76 ABA All-Star game. During the season, he made better than 90 per cent of his free throws.

CAREER HISTORY: Claude was Denver's second round draft pick in 1972 after a spectacular career at Stanford University. He was the Cardinals' most valuable player three times and still ranks as Stanford's all-time scoring leader with 1,566 points (20.6 average) in 76 games. He captained the team as a senior and was selected as All-Pacific Eight that year. He scored 1,663 points in four ABA seasons, and had a four-year field goal percentage of .470. He also hit better than 78 per cent of his free throw attempts.

PERSONAL NOTES: Claude is a native of Salida, Calif., and he and his wife, Gayleen, and their two sons still reside there.

23 GREG JACKSON

Position: Guard
Height: 6-0
Weight: 185
Age: 24
Born: 8-2-52, Brooklyn, N. Y.
High School: Tilden
College: Guilford '74
Residence: Brooklyn, N. Y.
NBA Experience: New York, Phoenix, 2nd year
How Acquired: Free Agent, Sept. 1976

Greg was one of the pleasant surprises in Buffalo's training camp this fall impressing everyone with his fierce defensive play and hustle. Unselfishness is another of his qualities, and he displayed excellent playmaking ability. The 6-1 Brooklyn native was the New York Knicks' fifth round draft choice in 1974, but saw action in just five games before being waived in October of that year. He was signed by Phoenix as a free agent Jan. 2, 1975 and played in 44 games for the Suns (20 of them as a starter), averaging 4.0 points per contest with 93 assists. He spent last winter playing for Allentown in the Eastern League where he was the circuit's assist leader with a 9.1 average. He also averaged 18 points a game and was rated among the top defensive guards in the league. Greg and new Braves assistant coach Charlie Harrison have at least one thing in common — they're both graduates of Guilford College in Greensboro, N. C., where Jackson scored 1,200 points in three seasons (14.5) and led his team to the NAIA championship in 1973.
